Research Interests	My research focuses on corruption and its transnational dimensions, including kleptocracy, enablers, corrosive capital, and strategic corruption. I also explore wider issues of governance, transition, authoritarian influence, and diaspora politics, with a particular interest in the autocratic appeal across countries. I have a strong research focus on EU enlargement and EU studies, especially in relation to geopolitics and the EU's external influence. Additional areas of interest include academic freedom in the context of internationalisation. I am also interested in the role of civil society in resisting corruption and authoritarianism, and would be keen to supervise researchers working on civic activism and anti-corruption efforts. Geographically, my work centres on South Eastern Europe/Western Balkans, the European Union, and the post-Soviet space, including Russia.
